Not illustrated. 1893 Excerpt: . . . t (). first derivative vanishes p times between these values and also once more when $x \rightarrow -il$, and so on, until we find its ql derivative vanishing p(-1 times among the values $xt, yi, \dots, yp, x, \dots, xv$, so that the (7 4-p)th or nth derivative must vanish once among them. The same thing would apply to the general formula for differences, etc. The most interesting case of this general formula is when p 1. It may then be written I have for want of a better name called the geueal form a composite, and the minor of fx is designated by the term body-determinant, or simply the body of the composite, in as much as it is got by striking out the outside rows and columns of the composite. There are two classes of 0 functions in (6)...
