Sulphur, or brimstone, is a yellow substance found in the earth, chiefly in volcanic countries, and combined with various minerals. We import it chiefly from Italy and Sicily. It is extensively used both in medicine and the arts, and is one of the ingredients of gunpowder. It burns with a pale blue flame, emitting at the same time a suffocating effluvia. Q What is oil of vitriol? A. An acid, called sulphuric acid, made by burning sulphur, in leaden chambers filled with oxygen gas. It is thus prepared in large quantities, for the use of bleachers and other manufacturers. Q. What is the substance called blue vitriol? A. Blue vitriol, blue copperas, or sulphate of copper, is a salt of a blue colour, produced by the union of copper with sulphuric acid. This salt is often...
